Where did this map come from?
 This map started with the widely-used Chicago Community Areas. But for the Affordable Housing Toolkit some of the Community Areas were too big, and other were too small. This map shows certain small Community Areas combined together, and certain large Community Areas split apart. To do this CUP consulted with local community organizations in Chicago and looked at the income data for each Census tract to keep areas with similar income profiles together. The areas shown on this map are only for talking about family incomes, they are not at all supposed to be neighborhood boundaries. If you have any suggestions for how we might make this map more useful, we'd love to hear them! Please email: info@welcometocup.org
